Earthquakes There Drive Many of the Natives Into Distraction

A majority of the islands of the New Hebrides group have lately passed through a baptism of fire, earthquake and volcanic disturbances, threatening the very existence of several of the largest and best islands, including Ambrym, celebrated for the excellence of its coffee.

On the latter an entire village of On the latter an entire village of natives was recently carried into the sea. The loss of life has been variously estimated at from sixty to seventy-five men, women and chil-dren, while in others of the group fatalities are also reported. A layer of ashes from two tomix inches deep covers the once fertile fields.

At Ambrym on November 2d there was a severe earthquake in the early morning which opened an entirely crater for the volcano on the west side about fourteen miles from the city and all the next day the whole island trembled. Since then it has opened in five or six different places. Even the island of Epi, which is much less affected, had on November 7th felt sixty-three distinct shocks, and for weeks has been covered by clouds of ashes and smoke. The traders and planters living on Ambrym island have fled precipitately to Port Sandwich (Malicollo), the nearest port, in many cases abandoning all their possessions.

On November 13th an earthquake shock rocked Ambrym from east to west, causing the land on which stood a small native village to slip with the humble houses of the inhabitants, and many of them threw themselves into the sea. It is impossible accurately to determine, but the lowest of the loss of life is fifty.

Owing to the recentness of the disaster details were not available when the Warrimoo left the Southern seas. Natives from all the volcentres of civilization for safety. A special correspondent of the Sydney Morning Herald, writing from Epi early in November, said: Ambrym island is still in volcanic eruption. The outbreak commenced October 16th at an old crater in the centre of the island. The lava stream extends from the crater to near Dip point, the western end. The centre of the island is a mass of lava. One stream was seen by her majesty's ship Dart to enter the sea on the morning of October 16th one mile east of Dip point; a column of steam arose 4500 feet; there were outbursts of smoke and fire south of the mission station. Dust fell heavily. The Dart embarked over eighty Frequent earthquakes were feit as far as Malokula, many of them severe. The Dart is watching events. some of the officers have ascended the crater, which is one mile in diameter and 1000 feet deep. Dense moke continues to issue from this

AN EXPENSIVE FAD. The Late Czar Had a Fancy for Models of Shipe.

Among the many queer fads of royalty is one possessed by both the late Czar and his brother-in-law, the Duke of Saxe Coburg-Gotha, namely, a craze for collecting models of ships, especially cruisers. In the case of Duke Alfred they are all of silver; there are some sixty or seventy of them, several being three to four feet in length, and they form an imposing fleet in the long gallery in which they have been placed in his palace at Coburg. Those of the late Emperor of Russia, while merely of wood and brass, made up in perfec-tion of finish and detail what they lacked in their intrinsic value, and one of the last additions to the collection was a model over seven feet long of the Cunard steamer Lucania, constructed at a cost of over $8000.

kin and Liver Furnish Some Valuable Products

The shark, much as the sailors may hate it, furnishes several valuable products. An oil obtained from its liver vies in medicinal qualities with that obtained from the liver of the cod; its skin, when dried, takes the hardness and polish of mother of pearl, and is used by jewelers for fancy objects, by binders for making shagreen, and by cabinet-makers for potishing wood.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The popularity of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the high esteem in which it is held leads us to believe it to be an article of great worth and merit. We have the pleasure of giving the experience of pleasure of giving the experience of three prominent citizens of Redondo Beach, Cal., in the use of the remedy. Mr. A. V. Trudell says: "I have always received prompt relief when I used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy." Mr. James Orchard says: "I am satisfied that Chamberlain's Cough remedy cured my cold." Mr. J. M.
